Why Generator Trouble?

To properly adjust, overhaul and repair generators and starting systems, it requires expert electrical experience. Unless you can get this expert work done,—do not allow your starting and ignition apparatus to be touched or tampered with. All other branches of garage work, battery repairing and rebuilding, general repairing and vulcanizing receive the same class of high grade mechanical experience HERE.

GLENDALE IN 1921

Original Site of the Town of Glendale First Located No. 3, Twenty-Nine Years Ago

Glendale, located ten miles northwest of Phoenix, is one of the chain of cities in the wonderful Salt River Valley, which is one of the greatest irrigated agricultural regions in the United States.

The foundation of the town of Glendale dates back into the early 90's and the prime motive for the location of the town was to have a central location which would supply the farmers and ranchers of that district with what commodities they might need as well as building up an enterprising commercial community.
The original location of the town of Glendale was made by the New England Land Company and the Arizona Improvement company, two corporations, doing business in the territory of Arizona. This original location consisted of 36 blocks, which at the present time extends from C street on the north to C street on the south; from Third avenue on the East to Third street on the West. This location was filed at the recorder's office November 3, 1892 at 2 o'clock.

Following fast on the heels of the original townsite location company came numerous additions of various sizes. The Hadsell addition was the first of these and comprised of three blocks extending northward from Glendale avenue and just west of the original location. This addition was located by Burgess A. Hadsell on May 8, 1893.

In the amended plat of Glendale filed July 8, 1895, five more blocks east of the original townsite and most all of Orchard addition was added.
The balance and final part of Orchard addition being located July 1, 1898.

Next came Woodford addition, which was added by the New England Land company and this part of town is that which is south of the depot and also in the vicinity of the creamery. This was filed on October 24, 1896.

The final additions came fast and in rapid succession. Park addition was located by the Glendale Land company, December 11, 1908. Sugar addition was added by the Southwest Sugar and Land company, April 12, 1909. Catlin Court by Otto R. Hansen, February 4, 1914.

The town of Glendale was resurveyed and replatted by H. L. Hancock on October 25, 1920.

In looking over old record, pictures and gathering information from many of the first settlers in the Glendale district many interesting sidelights on the building up of the town are given.

The Santa Fe, Prescott and Phoenix railroad was built through Glendale in 1894, a small station being built just west of the present one.
Glendale at that time consisted of three or four buildings, although the surrounding country as far west as Lateral 20 being devoted to farms, these being devoted to stock raising and fruit orchards. Vast areas being planted to Thompson's seedless grapes and apricots. In order to take care of the stock industry the Santa Fe built stock shipping pens. Also a fruit packing shed was built on the present site of the cantaloupe shed in order to take care of the fruit industry.

A little later than this the Ryder Hardware store was located where the ice plant is and a lumber yard was operated in connection. The first grocery store was a two story structure located between Ira Moore's home and the Halstead Lumber company was operated by a man named Davison.

The next store was in the present Ira Moore building and was operated by Walter Lund. The first building located east of Lateral 18 being what is now occupied by the Woods pharmacy.

From this meager beginning in the late nineties, Glendale began to build. The dates and figures of the following may not be wholly correct but will serve to give an idea of Glendale and its growth. The present water system had its beginning in 1907. It consisted of one well, a 5 horsepower engine and a 5,000 gallon galvanized iron tank located on a 40-foot tower. This one well and tank continued to serve until 1915 when it was purchased by the town of Glendale. The water system was first started by Archie Bennett, then Daniel Brothman purchased it and he in turn sold it to John Tuckey.
Tuckey sold it to F. H. Sine and Mr.
Sine then selling it to the town of Glendale. At this time there were only 150 customers as against over 1000 at the present time.

The present electrical system was started by the Glendale Ice company and was purchased by the town of Glendale in 1912. At that time there were only 60 customers as against over 600 at the present time.

One interesting incident was related by Vic Messenger of a regular central states twister that visited Glendale in 1904. At that time a hay and grain business was operated on the present site of the Glendale Hay company. This high wind came along and caught this building in its grip and utterly destroyed the building.
Pieces of the tin being carried as far as Orchard addition.

The oldest store doing business in Glendale at the present time is that of Ray Stauffer having been located at its present location in 1907.
The first school in Glendale was built on the old grammar school block around 1900 and continued to operate there until 1917 when the present unit system was inaugurated. The Glendale high school had its first building in 1912 which is the present structure.
The ice plant was built in Glendale around 1900, the first bank was started by W. H. Slaughter in 1900 and the street car came to Glendale in 1911. The sugar factory was built in 1909 and the Pacific creamery is only a recent structure.

GLENDALE TO HAVE ANOTHER WATCHMAN

GLENDALE, April 12.—The town council met at the city hall Monday evening and a very busy session was held. It was voted that in view of the fact that there had been so many robberies and other depredations at night of late another night watchman would be employed to aid Night Officer King. After several applications had been received and taken under consideration it was decided to appoint William Hewitt.
The question of paving was taken up but no definite action was taken.
The Sunday closing ordinance proposed by the council of churches, which has been in the hands of the city attorney, was reported on last night. The city attorney, in handing down an opinion, decided that the ordinance as it stood was too strict and the council did not have it within its power to enforce such a discriminatory ordinance.

Sealed proposals were opened in regard to the installation of a deep well pump. These were taken under consideration. The regular bills were approved and ordered paid.

Greys Play Casa Grande The Glendale Greys will have another game away from home next Sunday if things do not go amiss.
The Greys are scheduled to meet the Casa Grande Wolverines. After showing just what they could do last Sunday in the game with Wickenburg, the boys have gone out after bigger game. Practice has been called for several nights this week and a good workout will be had.

Helping the Poor
The people of the Glendale community are doing all they can to alleviate the suffering of the poor.
Food is being distributed as soon as it comes in. Negotiations are under way with the Arizona Cotton Growers' association and with the immigration service and it is hoped that in a short time destitute Mexican families will receive transportation back to Mexico.

Symphony Orchestra
The Walter G. Grassie post of the American legion will bring to Glendale on Friday night, April 15, the Ladies' Columbia Symphony orchestra. The local boys have gone to a great deal of expense to provide this musical treat for Glendale and it is hoped that a large audience will be on hand to enjoy it.
